e. Value of Services

i. Cost

   i. Bibliographic Records – MHLS is undertaking a study of options, including vendor cost, for acquiring and managing records.

   ii. Cataloging Help Desk Services

      a. MHLS staff provides member library staff with help desk services to support merging, cleaning, adding, creating, and deleting catalog records.

      b. Comparable help desk services, which are provided by a vendor or non-profit organization, have not identified.

      c. Due to the shared catalog, a local or county based service model is not comparable to the centralized cataloging services provided by MHLS.

   iii. Compare with Innovative/ALA training costs

      a. Innovative Training\textsuperscript{vi} = $4,800 plus travel

         i. Average cost for Innovative training per person = $300
ii. 16 Member Library Staff Attendance X $300 = $4,800

b. ALA Preconference Training = $6,304 plus travel
   i. Average cost of ALA Preconference Session per person = $394
   ii. 16 Member Library Staff Attendance X $394 = $6,304

c. ALA Essential Elements of a Training Program for Entry-Level Professional Catalogers: The total training program will probably require from six months to one year to complete
